Bodenhamer for Economy on Tax, Favors Farm Aid

Senate Candidate Explains Position on Soldier Bonus

El Doradoan Returns to Southern Counties After North State Tour

TO MERGE BUREAUS

Bodenhamer Believes Federal Government Can Save Millions

O. L. Bodenhamer, back home after a far-flung speaking tour through the northern counties, came into Hope Thursday night for his fifth speech of the day, at the city hall at 8 o'clock. The El Dorado candidate for the United States senate spoke to a fair sized crowd which braved the sweltering heat of the city auditorium to hear a Democratic discussion of national politics.

Previously in the same day Major Bodenhamer spoke at Delight at 10 a. m.; Murfreesboro at 11:15; Nashville at 2 p. m.; and Washington at 4 p. m., drawing good crowds at all places.

He was introduced to the Hope audience by O. A. Graves, local attorney. The speaker's request, Mr. Graves previously introduced two other visiting candidates for brief announcements: J. Oscar Humphrey, Little Rock, seeking re-election as auditor of state; and John E. Harris, El Dorado, candidate for associate justice of the supreme court.

Bodenhamer's Speech
Federal relief to the farmer, creation of employment as a temporary aid to the unemployed, revision of tariff, a strong policy of Americanism, federal regulation of interstate transportation agencies and public utilities, and the equalization of educational opportunities for children in all states were proposed by Bodenhamer. Bodenhamer announced himself as opposed to cancellation of the war debts and "outstanding liabilities" which he declared would jeopardize our prestige in world affairs.

Describing every tax-dollar as a "sacrifice," Bodenhamer demanded a "positive and definite reduction in the cost of government operation." Comparing the three billion dollar budget of 1914 to the 14 billion dollar cost of government last year, Bodenhamer pointed out that 20 million people today are dependent on the government for their livelihood while the "real producers are suffering from want of food and clothing."

Bodenhamer said that he will fight for the passage of bills to reduce the salaries of high salaried government officials; for the discharge of "broken down politicians who write and send out thousands of unrecalled pamphlets at government expense; for the consolidation of "lapping and overlapping bureaus," and for the elimination of "fat jobs" for the relatives of high government officials.

To Fight for Reduction
Charging that leaders in Congress are trying to find "ways of raising taxes" rather than reduce the cost of operation, which he said was 13 million dollars today, Bodenhamer said "I enlist with those who will fight for the reduction in cost rather than add taxes on an already tax-burdened people. However, if taxes must be increased, temporarily to meet the emergency, I favor adding taxes on the most able to pay."

Declaring that if this Congress does not adopt adequate relief measures for unemployment among veterans and non-veterans alike, or if a satisfactory plan has not been devised prior to the convening of the next Congress, Bodenhamer said he would favor immediate cash payment of the bonus.

"My stand is the same today as it was twelve years ago, I believe expediency has not influenced my views. Immediate cash payment of the bonus is being urged as a relief measure to aid the unemployed veteran. Solving the unemployment question is of paramount importance because it involves eight millions of people—veteran and non-veteran alike. One cannot be given relief at the expense of another and I am opposed to the immediate cash payment at the expense of the widows, orphans and disabled world war veterans. Payment of the bonus is not a debatable question. It is an obligation that has been assumed by the federal government which must and will be paid."

His Bonus Position
At the Detroit convention of the United League I took the position that a pension for widows and orphans of the World War veterans and the

British Will Cut Debt; French 'No'

Lausanne Conference Agrees to Moratorium Extension

LAUSANNE, Switzerland.—(AP)—Great Britain offered to wipe the slate clean of reparations and war debts at the international economic conference here Friday, but France insisted on the elimination of trade barriers which she regarded as more important than cancellation of war payments.

Germany's spokesman, Chancellor von Papen, in a temperate address, made no reference to the repudiation of reparations but indicated it would be necessary to declare a moratorium on private debts, most of which are owed to Americans.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan accepted a temporary agreement to suspend reparations payments from June 30, when the Hoover moratorium ends, to the close of the present conference.

Raskob, Chrysler in Big Bear Raid

Nicholas Brady and William Fox Completed "Big Four" Pool

Washington.—(AP)—Testimony that John J. Raskob participated in a short-selling pool in Fox Theatres stock which made a profit of nearly 2 million dollars was given the senate banking committee Friday by William A. Gray, committee counsel.

The chairman of the Democratic National Committee was named as a participant along with William Fox, former head of the film and theater corporations, in the committee's investigation of the New York Stock Exchange.

Others named were: William F. Kenney, Mrs. Elizabeth Meehan, Joseph E. Higgins, Bradford Ellsworth, Walter F. Chrysler and Nicholas Brady. Raskob, Chrysler, Brady and Fox were described as the largest participants, having assumed a liability of three quarters of a million dollars each in the pool, which operated in 1929.

Casting Rod Lands Six-Pounder Bass

Ralph Bailey Makes Record Catch While Fishing With Fly

Ralph Bailey, local shoe man, landed one of the prize game fish of the season Wednesday when he caught a six-pound wide-mouthed bass. This particularly large specimen was caught with a casting rod and fly, while Bailey was fishing in one of the lakes near Old River, south of Fulton, about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. He explained that it is very rare that a game fish of this size is caught with a casting rod.

When it had been brought to town the "fisherman's pride" tipped the scales at 5 pounds, 14 3/4 ounces. This is believed to be the largest game fish catch of the season, and only a few larger than this have been caught previously.

Bailey is having the mouth of the catch mounted for preservation by local experts. This head is apparently larger in size than many 7 or eight pound bass which have been caught in neighboring waters in years gone by.

Bailey is connected with Hitt's Shoe Store, on Second street. He was accompanied on the fishing expedition by Wm. Brummett, local barber.

Sleeping Crew Safe, But 100 of Repair Gang Scattered

MONTREAL, Canada.—(AP)—At least 23 were killed and 63 were injured as the result of two explosions aboard the oil tanker Cymbaline Friday at the docks of Canadian Vickers, Ltd. The first explosion, believed to have been caused by a hot rivet, occurred shortly before dawn as a force of 100 men were repairing the vessel, and while the tanker's crew of 30 men slept.

The crew are all accounted for. The second explosion followed an hour later, as firemen played hoses upon the burning ship.

Orange Front for Hardware Stores

Hope Hardware Co. Paints Up With Association Colors

A new coat of brilliant orange colored paint has been given the exterior and interior woodwork of the Hope Hardware company at the corner of Second and Elm streets. This particular shade of orange, Manager E. O. Wingfield explained, is being used as a standard color for independently owned hardware stores who are members of the National Association of Retail Hardware Dealers.

After several years' study, the trade association has selected this color as being a distinguishing mark for hardware stores throughout the nation. It was the intent to try to identify this color of store front with hardware stores, as part of a program to attract more of the hardware business back to hardware stores. It was pointed out that in the last 20 years many other lines of retail stores have gradually added more and more of the smaller hardware items, until the association should make some effort to stem the tide.

During the past year since this color was adopted the Hope firm has been using orange colored bags and wrapping paper for the same tint. Eventually the same shade of letterheads, envelopes and statements will be used, to further impress customers that the items purchased came from a regular hardware store.

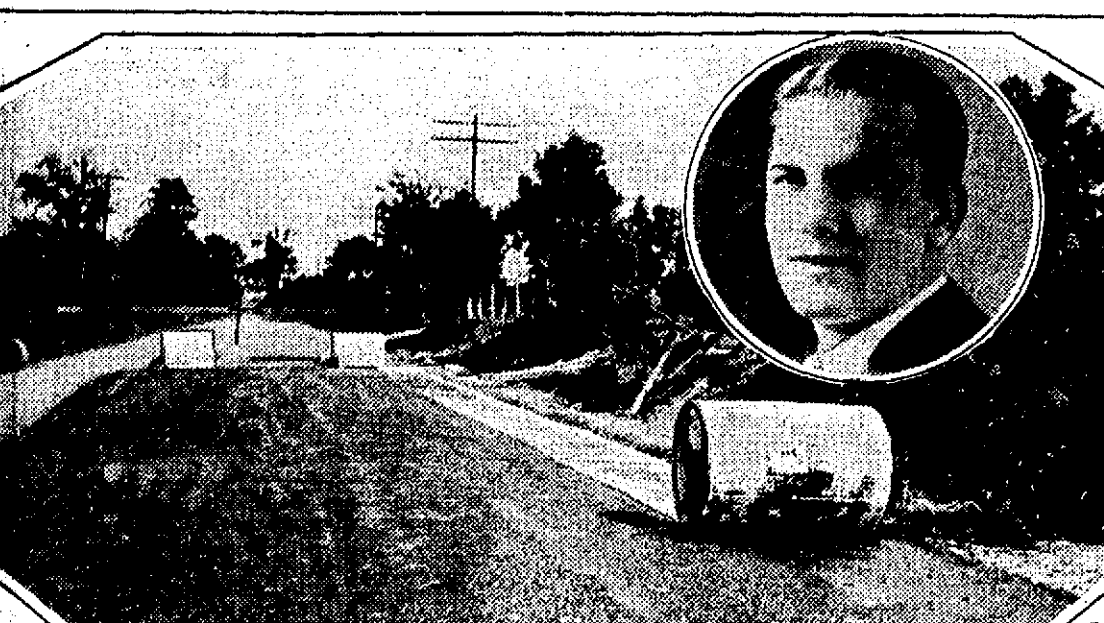

Many manufacturers have been boxing and packing their hardware items, sold through these home stores, in wrappings of the same orange shade.

Zenobia Huckabee, 17, Dies South of City

Zenobia Huckabee, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Huckabee, living on the Lewisville road six miles south of Hope, died at the family home early Friday morning. She had been in ill health for some time.

Funeral and burial service was held at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at Evening Shade cemetery, conducted by the Rev. J. L. Cannon, of the First Methodist church of Hope.

Highways Made of Cotton May Produce New Market

Near Baton Rouge, La., highway engineers are experimenting with cotton photo shows a roll of cotton being laid in strips over a gravel and asphalt bed. Upper right is Arnold Davis, young engineer who has perfected a method of using cotton in highway construction.

BATON ROUGE, La.—Highway engineers have come to the aid of cotton growers of the south and it now seems possible that a new market for cotton will be created in construction of roads partly built of this material.

Arnold Davis, engineer, and Harry Nelson, road builder, are firmly convinced of this. Both are occupied at present constructing experimental stretches of a new type of road using cotton and are enthusiastic about the results.

Davis, out of an engineering school only nine years, has been building roads in California, Mississippi, Arkansas, Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana. It was four years ago, while working on a road project in Arkansas, that he hit on the cotton road idea, quite by accident.

"Mud and Water Cause Cracks"
"A highway engineer knows that water soaks through the asphalt and gravel mixture on a hard surfaced road, and then the muddy water comes back through it," Davis explains. "If the particles of dirt left there didn't make it impossible for the road to seal up again, no harm would be done. But this mud causes the asphalt to crack and break."

"We have been trying through the years to build a road that would withstand water. I decided that the thing to do was to get rid of the water."

Davis was in charge of a road construction job in Arkansas. Workmen mopping an asphalt distributor had his shirt torn off by the machinery and it dropped to the roadside and was left there, ruined, and the road was completed over it.

Some weeks later the road began to crack. Davis was sent to find the cause. He saw the road sunken and cracked from rain and mud action, but one spot seemed undamaged by the elements. He dug through the layers of asphalt and found the cotton shirt of the laborer, water-proofed with asphalt, which prevented passage of water and mud.

An Old Shirt—An Idea!
There was the young engineer's idea. Since then he has been conducting experiments to determine the most satisfactory cotton cloth and the correct grade of asphalt to use. Harry Nelson, a pioneer in road building, is assisting him. Road builders from all over the country are watching the experiments with interest.

In construction of the new road, large rolls of loosely woven cotton cloth are laid on the surface of a gravel and asphalt road rolled to a smooth surface. The asphalt from the hose begins to soak through the fabric, and another treatment of asphalt is given the top. This forms a water-proof and airtight layer covering the base. A wearing surface is then placed on the whole road bed.

Davis maintains that the new method of construction will save cost in materials and that the road will wear much longer than present types.

"The use of cotton cloth produces tensile strength in the pavement in the same manner that fabric does in the rubber automobile tire," he explains.

CALGARY, Alta.—A local thief must have the garden hose kleptomaniac. In the past few days he has made away with a total of 455 feet of hose, the latest victim being Arthur Sutherland, from whom he thief purloined 65 feet.

Veterans Packed Into Galleries as Brookhart Speaks

Blanton, of Texas, Another Proponent, Follows Iowa Senator

ECONOMY DEADLOCK

Disagree Over Furlough or Pay-Cut for U. S. Employees

WASHINGTON.—(AP) With the galleries packed by war veterans and several thousand more massed outside, the senate Friday pressed toward a vote on the cash bonus, which leaders predicted certain defeat.

The veterans' leaders counseled against any disturbance, while police augmented their guard at the capitol.

Senator Brookhart opened the speeches in favor of payment, and was followed by Senator Blanton, of Texas, another proponent.

The bonus bill had passed the house Wednesday, but was reported out of the finance committee of the senate unfavorably Thursday by a vote of 14 to 2 and senate leaders said it would be defeated on the floor of the upper house.

Deadlocked on Economy

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house and senate conferees on the economy bill broke up again Friday without reaching an agreement, and one of the conferees members said they were hopelessly deadlocked.

Another meeting was called for late Friday afternoon to try to reach an agreement on the controversy over President Hoover's furlough plan, which the house is opposing, being in favor of a straight cut in pay for government employees.

W. C. T. U. Speaker Calls Press 'Wet'

Address at Hope Chapter Meeting Declares Wet Sentiment Exaggerated

The monthly meeting of the Hope Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. H. H. Stuart on West Avenue C, Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Harry Dabbs as associate hostess.

Mrs. Stuart, president, presided over the business session, which was opened with the singing of "All Around the World." The first Psalm was read in concert, and followed by a prayer by Dr. J. L. Cannon, pastor of First Methodist church.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. John Arnold read the minutes of the previous meeting, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. R. W. Muldrow.

It was announced that another medal contest would be given in the near future.

Mrs. Jennie Hannegan, flower mission chairman, gave the report of the work of her department, which is one of such wide scope and importance that little doubt of its value remains after a resume of the work is reported.

Mrs. Stuart read an article on flower mission work, which so fully exemplifies the Golden Rule in action. She also gave reports from the Union Signal "to show that the wet forces in Congress are not so uniformly successful in nullifying the Eighteenth Amendment, nor is the demand for same so overwhelming as the press would lead one to believe." But, the wets are not confining their propaganda to the press alone; the radio is now being largely utilized in disseminating their claims, she added.

It was announced that meetings would be held during July and August, and Mrs. W. I. Furkins would be the hostess for the meeting of July 21.

This program was in charge of Mrs. D. B. Thompson and was one of the most interesting in the history of the local Union. Mrs. R. L. Broach gave an interesting sketch of the life of Jennie Cassidy, the founder of flower mission work, and was followed by Mrs. S. H. Warmack, whose subject was, "An Appeal." Mrs. Jennie Hannegan outlined plans for future flower mission endeavors, and told of the lives which have been uplifted and brightened by the "helping hand and ready smile" of the practitioners of the precepts evolved by Miss Cassidy.

Miss Catherine Franks read two delightful numbers: "Fanny and the Whale," and "Miss Bray's Wedding." Miss Franks is a frequent guest of the Union and her renditions are always received with much pleasure.

The meeting closed with the Aaronic benediction, after which the hostesses served a delicious ice course to the large number present, which indicates the unflagging interest of those who would promote temperance and good citizenship.

Back to the Farm

NO aspect of the Depression is much more interesting than the way in which out-of-work city people have been slipping back to the farm lately.

In nearly every part of the country there is going on a quiet but steady exodus from the city to the country. Abandoned farms are getting new tenants. Men who have toiled in factories for years are getting out on the open acres to try their hands at agriculture. Children used to cramped city streets are discovering that country fields can make fine playgrounds.

To be sure, the plight of agriculture is very little, if any, better than that of industry. The farmer is having his troubles just as the city man is—having been having them, in fact, for years. Prices paid for farm produce are down, and if the number of farmers is to increase they probably will go still lower.

But the exodus continues; for when it gets right down to a struggle for the bare necessities of life, the man on a farm enjoys an enormous advantage over the city chap.

The farmer may be plagued by mortgages, high taxes, overproduction and so on; but, unless he is a one-chon specialist, he doesn't starve to death. He may not have a dollar in the bank, or any immediate prospects of getting any, but he has food in his larder, and he knows where tomorrow's meal is coming from.

The factory hand—perhaps it would be better to say the ex-factory hand—seems to have been pondering over this fact. As a result he is heading for the country. A few acres along a dusty road look good to him, even though he knows that they'll never make him rich. They'll take him out of the breadline.

The danger in all of this is that many people utterly unsuited to farm life are apt to try to make farmers out of themselves. For such people—those who know nothing whatever about farms, and have no capital to get them started—the change is likely to be a leap from the frying pan into the fire. But for those who are willing to work, who know something about farming and who go into it with a full realization of the difficulties ahead, it ought to be an excellent move.

A Change for the Better

THE recent fracas at the Cleveland American League baseball park, in which a group of Chicago White Sox players indulged in a fist fight with umpire George Moriarty, was news because it represented a very rare occurrence; and for that reason it emphasizes the way in which baseball has changed.

Actual physical encounters are rarities in big league baseball these days. The players seldom come to blows with one another. The umpires seldom have to be protected after the game ends.

Yet such things used to be commonplace. A baseball player not only had to be a capable athlete; he had to be handy with his fists as well. The steady patron of a ball park usually could count on seeing at least one good fight a week, if not more.

The game itself hasn't changed. But the conditions under which it is played, and the character of the players, has.

Pushing Economy Too Far

THE Mayor of that Minnesota town who has been auctioning off to the lowest bidder, replacing policemen, street sweepers and clerks by men who were willing to work for less than existing wage, stands out as one of the most peculiar municipal executives the nation contains.

But his case is an isolated one, and it would not be worth mentioning if it were not for the fact that he has just been doing what a lot of other cities have been subconsciously thinking of doing.

His idea, after all, is that the one important thing is to get city work done as cheaply as possible. A lot of cities are working on the same general notion. They haven't got to the point where they're willing to auction jobs at starvation wages, but they're approaching it. In these hard times we need to remember that economy on public payrolls can be pushed too far.

New York's rigid labor laws and Connecticut's lax statutes have brought a swarm of fly-by-night manufacturers into the state during the past five years. We are helpless to act under the present laws.—Joseph T. Foss, Connecticut Commissioner of Labor.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, 16, and pretty, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter whom she meets while visiting her parents in the city. When Cherry learns Dan's telephone number, she calls him and he tells her she must come to his home. Her father discovers this and threatens to send her to California. Cherry defies him and he orders her to leave.

She goes to Dan's home and he tells her that he is a newspaper reporter and that he is going to marry her. The ceremony is performed that night by a justice of the peace.

Cherry looks for an apartment but is disappointed to find that no one will rent to her. She goes to a tip that TOMMY "BOB" CALHOUN, a gambler, is coming to Wellington. Cherry encounters him and he tells her that he is a newspaper reporter. The other upper acts the story and Dan's home is destroyed. Cherry and Dan are married.

DIXIE SHANNON, movie critic, writes that Cherry and Dan are married. Dan and Cherry move into it. Cherry finds Dan's house and cooking. They invite MAX PENNEY, a friend of Dan's, to dinner but the food burns up and they have to dine in a restaurant.

A week later Cherry works all day cleaning house. Dixie invites her and Dan to a bridge party but Dan refuses to go. He tries to write a short story, suddenly the paper is torn and the typewriter and books out of the apartment.

NOV GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

DAN opened the door quietly and entered. He had been gone nearly an hour. "Hello," he said to Cherry.

The girl had turned at the sound of the key in the lock but now she did not glance up. She was sitting in the window seat, looking very small with her feet curled beneath her, her face white against the cloudy mass of dark hair. The night through the window behind her was dark. Dan had been staring at that starless sky.

"Hello," Phillips put down his hat and crossed the room. "I'm sorry," he began abruptly. "I didn't mean to think I said tonight. I—well, I want you to know I'm sorry about it."

"It's all right," Phillips could see that. The brown eyes raised to his showed how deeply Cherry had been hurt. There were no tears in those eyes now but the wisp of handkerchief she clutched was a damp and twisted ball.

Dan waited uncertainly. He wanted to say more, did not know how to begin.

"Can I sit down here?" She moved to make room for him and he dropped to the seat with a sigh.

"I've been walking," he told her. "Walking? Where did you go?" "Oh, I don't know. Down the street—I didn't notice. It's getting cold out."

Suddenly Cherry was concerned. "And you didn't have your topcoat! Oh, Dan, you shouldn't have done that. You've probably taken cold and now you'll be sick!" "I don't think so."

"But you can't be sure. You should have a hot bath and—"

"There's nothing wrong with me, I tell you. I'll be all right."

There was silence again. This time Cherry broke it. She leaned nearer, touched Dan's hand with her own.

"I—didn't mean what I said, either," she told him. "I shouldn't have promised Dixie we'd come without asking you first and I didn't mean to complain. It was my fault."

HE stopped her. "No, it was mine. I lost my head and there was no excuse for it. I know you get tired of this life. Cooking and washing dishes and working all day in this hole. It's my fault that you have to do it because I don't make enough to hire a maid. That's why you have all this drudgery. You shouldn't have married me, Cherry! It was a mistake! I'll never be able to give you the things you should have—servants and money and pretty clothes. I'm just a bum police reporter and that's all I'll ever be. I'm—oh, what's the use? What's the use?"

Dan's hands opened wide in a gesture of disgust.

"But, Dan—" her arm stole about his shoulder. "You mustn't talk that way! You mustn't because it isn't true! You're not a bum reporter and you won't have you saying you are. What do I care for servants and clothes and a lot of money? Those things don't make people happy. I found that out! And I don't mind about the housework, either. Of course I know I'm not much good at it yet but if you can stand it I guess I can."

Dan shook his head. "You've been a sport about it all," he told her, "but that doesn't change things."

"I don't want them changed," he looked at her. "Do you really mean that?" Dan asked slowly. "Do you?"

"You know that I do."

"You mean that if you knew it was going to be such hard work with bills piling up and never any good times—do you mean you'd want to marry me if it was to do over again?"

"Yes, Dan."

He scarcely heard her. It was the answer in Cherry's star-bright eyes that made him catch her close. He held her in both arms pressed tightly to his heart. His lips, eager and demanding, found the girl's.

"You darling!" he whispered huskily. "Oh, you darling!"

LATER as Cherry, with her negligent pulled tight about her, was putting the empty milk bottles in the hall Dan called to her.

"Tell you what we'll do tomorrow, honey. We're going to step out!"

"But, Dan, we can't afford—"

"Oh, don't think I'm getting reckless. We'll see a movie—one I can get passes for."

"That will be fun," Cherry agreed. "I'll have dinner ready the minute you get here. And it won't be canned beans, either! Something difficult and complicated to prepare like—ham and eggs!"

They both laughed. "Don't know where you'd find anything better!" Dan insisted.

Peace and tranquility had been restored in the household. The threatening problem of financial insecurity had reared its ugly head and been put down—for the time.

Dan and Cherry did see a motion picture the next evening. They sat hand in hand in the semi-darkness while a lovely blond actress in the role of a princess lost her heart to an adventurous young American. They watched these two cleverly outwit the diplomats who tried to separate them. The young American was penniless but handsome and he was an audacious suitor. The blond princess sang wistful love songs.

When the organ soloist began a popular dance tune it seemed to Cherry that the song was inspired, a masterpiece. The words flashed on the screen:

"Come let us stroll down lovers' lane
Once more to sing love's old refrain
For we must say, 'Auf Wiedersehn
—Auf Wiedersehn, my dear—'"

A girl beside Cherry was singing in a high-pitched voice. Cherry did not sing but she was sure that she would never forget that song. It was beautiful though sad. She and Dan knew what it meant to stroll down lovers' lane but they would never, never part. They would never say "farewell" as the sweet-hearts in the song.

Cherry's hand, in Dan's, pressed closer. The song was concluded and a news reel flashed on the screen. Twenty minutes later the two left the theater and walked down Twelfth street.

They had gone less than a block when a gay voice halted them. Max Pearson, crossing the street with great, swinging strides, was with them almost immediately.

"Called your place half an hour ago," he said, "but I couldn't get an answer. What are you doing now?"

"Nothing. Just on our way home."

"How about joining me for a little spin? It's too fine a night to stay in doors."

Dan and Cherry agreed enthusiastically. They walked to the parking station where Pearson had left his car and all three crowded into the single seat. The roadster was not to be compared with the smart little motor car that had been Cherry's at home but the engine was trustworthy. Soon they reached a highway along which buildings became farther and farther apart. Small stores, oil stations and low dwellings gave way for houses set in white lawns. It was a neighborhood given to truck gardening.

CHERRY'S head was tilted backward. The breeze against her cheeks was caressing—more like a June night than one in May. Well, June was not so far ahead. The equalization of benefits for our disabled veterans were of primary importance and should be our first consideration. One hundred and twenty world war veterans are dying every day and leaving widows and orphans who would be penalized unless proper provision is made for them," he said.

Bodenhamer, who was chairman of the Legion national Legislation committee during the thick of the fight over the adjusted compensation bill, said, "I favor now as I favored in Detroit, a cancellation of the interest rate so that the certificate will be worth par and so the 50 per cent loan will be considered as one half cash payment on account. The history of my activities is a matter of record," he declared.

Referring to the unemployment problem, Bodenhamer urged speedy action, saying the seriousness of the existing problem "cannot be denied and that there is no good reason for trying to ascertain the cause one place the responsibility now." "Temporary relief is necessary now to prevent starvation, deterioration of human value and the ultimate loss in stunted and under-nourished boys and girls. A permanent preventive is vital to guarantee against the return of such calamity. I pledge myself to the task of finding a means of giving both temporary and permanent relief," he said.

"The government cannot legislate unemployment out of existence or legislate eight million new jobs for the unemployment out of existence or fair distribution of the labor and the profits of labor. It can create a limited number of jobs which in turn will stimulate additional jobs and it can lend its credit to help business recover," the El Dorado candidate said.

Helped Big Fellows

Citing the two billion dollars made available to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Bodenhamer said that the promise that money would aid the unemployed has not been fulfilled. "That money has not been filtered down from the banks and trust boxes of financial centers," he charged.

"You can't build a house from the top down. Purchasing power must be increased to stimulate business. When people have employment, they are able to buy, and when they are able to buy they create a demand for more goods; when there is a demand for more goods the wheels of industry turn and a revival of business is the result," Bodenhamer said.

"American labor is not asking for charity from the people or for a dole from the government. Labor wants a job and a chance to earn a decent wage," Bodenhamer warned, however, that labor "will seek and receive a dole unless the government makes possible the creation of additional employment."

Referring to various relief plans, including the dole, credit expansion, commencement of public works, low interest loans to buy homes and farms, shorter working hours, less child labor, unemployment and old age insurance, and inflation, Bodenhamer said, "It is my pledge to the working men and women of Arkansas to be found fighting on the side of those who seek to guarantee a fair chance to earn a decent wage."

Agricultural Aid

"For more than ten years, agriculture, the basic industry of this nation, has been fighting a losing battle. Farmers have been relieved of almost everything except their mortgages. The American farmer is not asking for charity—he wants a market and a fair price for his products. The government has subsidized, assisted or protected practically every other American industry. It is true that some small aid is given the farmer today through the Federal Farm Board and the Federal Marketing Act.

"It must be admitted that the Federal Farm Board has made mistakes, but at the same time it has rendered an unpaid service. It will take years to perfect the Farm Board just as it took years to perfect the Federal Reserve system. The Farm Board should be given a chance and I favor its continuance, especially in so far as it seeks to finance, tide over and assist the farmer in marketing his products."

"Tariffs must be lowered to open up foreign markets; marketing agencies must be strengthened to give farmers the best possible prices; the gap between prices of raw material and the finished products must be lessened and the farmer's tax burden must be reduced to save and preserve his home. His mortgage indebtedness, contracted at high prices, must be refinanced to allow him to pay back his debt 'in long term, low interest payments.' 'The scalper and the gambler must be routed from his haunts' the speaker declared.

"Arkansas farmers, along the Mississippi and its tributaries have been suffering from the levee and drainage burdens which today are proving unbearable. I favor legislation which will look to the refinancing of these burdens," he said.

Tariff is Unjust

Characterizing our present tariff policy as unjustifiable "either by precedent or expediency," Bodenhamer favored a revision of the present tariff scale which has "restricted our foreign market and reduced our export trade by two billion dollars."

He also favored federal regulation of all interstate transportation agencies, and urged protection of highways from "unwarranted use, and existing agencies from unfair and unregulated competition."

Federal as well as local supervision of utilities was urged to "prevent excessive profits at the expense of helpless consumers."

Bodenhamer declared himself in favor of the "equalization of educational opportunities for the boys and girls throughout the several states, in order that the youth of today shall be trained sufficiently to assume the duties and responsibilities of citizenship."

Electric Eye Will 'Time' Big Events

Human Eye Errs 3-10th Second With Stop-Watch

FITTSFIELD, Mass.—An electric timer which records the start and finish of each man in a race, without inclusion of the human element that so often is unreliable, has been developed by engineers of an electric company here. It makes use of the electric eye, or phototube, which not only detects the start and finish accurately but makes a permanent record of the race on a strip of moving picture film. Incidentally, five heats can be run on one film, which can be developed on the spot.

According to an investigation by Professor Thomas K. Cureton, Jr., of Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, hand-timing is about three-tenths of a second faster than accurate electric timing. This is due to human tardiness at the start and eagerness at the finish. Athletes and coaches for some time have been experimenting with electric devices which would supply the needed split-second accuracy. By employing the versatile phototube it is possible to time a race to the one-thousandth part of a second and, by reason of its successful tests thus far, there is every indication that it may be given consideration in the country's principal track events.

Bright Yarn for Dull Times

An elderly German couple decided to buy the farm adjoining their property. The price agreed upon was $16,000, and they went to town to conclude the deal.

They entered the bank carrying an old battered milk pail with a tin cover, which they set on the floor between their chairs.

When the time came to pay, the old farmer pulled the pail up on his lap and started to count out an assortment of money, much of which had been out of circulation for some time.

Finally he reached the bottom, and stopped, obviously very upset.

"Why, there's only $14,000 here," he exclaimed.

His wife looked equally concerned for a moment; then her face brightened.

"Ach, papa, you brought the wrong pail!" she exclaimed.—Chicago News.

A GOOD CLEANSING LAXATIVE

"For fully 30 years I have, by using it, known Black-Draught to be a great medicine," says Mr. A. L. Cone, of Perkinson, Miss. "I found it so satisfactory, I haven't seen any need to change. When I get constipated, I feel all out of sorts, and tired and sluggish. I take a few doses of Black-Draught. It regulates my bowels and I get all right. It will cleanse the system and help you, if you use it as we have.

Try this purely vegetable laxative medicine which so many men and women praise and recommend.

A rosebush grew by a crumbling wall. At the end of a lonely lane. Where a solemn silence ruled o'er all And the tangled grass and the weeds so tall. Withered for lack of rain. But the rosebush bloomed all the summer through. With each chance upheld for the morning dew. 'Twas enough for the rose that the sun shone bright. And the dew fell soft and warm. Its mission it was to reflect the light. To gather sweet fragrance out of the night. And strength from the buffeting storm. To a higher power 'twas left to decree What the blossoms should find as their destiny.—Selected.

Junior Team Wins Over Stamps, 10-7

Two Games Scheduled at Fair Park Here This Sunday

The Hope Junior American Legion baseball team defeated the Stamps Juniors at Stamps Thursday afternoon, 10 to 7.

Jack Turner turned in a well pitched game for the Hope nine, hurling a 7-hit game and striking out 12 men. Urban, Richards, Wimberly and Brown did most of the hitting for Hope.

Two ball games are scheduled for Hope fans Sunday. The Loreco team of the Texarkana city league will be the opponents of the Hope National Guards.

The first game will be between the Hope Juniors and the Stamps Juniors, starting at 1:45 o'clock. Hamiter will pitch for Hope.

McDowell will hurl for the National Guards in the second game, scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock. The Loreco team is leading the Texarkana city league, and when they meet the Guardians here Sunday a good game is in prospect.

Hope Is Defeated by Taylor 14 to 4

Neither Pate Nor Schooley Able to Check Taylor Batsmen

Two Hope pitchers were unable to check a slugging onslaught by a Taylor baseball team at that town Thursday afternoon, resulting in a lop-sided score in favor of Taylor, 14-4.

Pate started on the mound for Hope, but was ineffective from the beginning, allowing Taylor 10 runs in the first five innings. Schooley went to his aid in the sixth inning and was scored on four times before the game finally came to an end.

This marks the second victory for Taylor over the Hope team in a three-game series.

Wallace Cook, shortstop for the Hope team, crashed out two home runs over the leftfield fence. His first four-bagger came in the first inning, and the second in the sixth. No one was on base either time.

In the fourth inning Hope accounted for two more runs. Coop singled to start, and was followed by Schooley who slammed the ball over the centerfield fence.

The Hope team is scheduled to play Garland City at Fair park Friday afternoon. The game starts at 3:30. Clyde Zinn will pitch for Hope.

'Gay Caballero' at Saenger Saturday

George O'Brien and Victor McLaglen Are Players

The arrival of George O'Brien's latest Fox production, "The Gay Caballero," which plays at the Saenger Saturday only leaves no doubt of the increasing popular appeal of outdoor romance. The reception accorded this saga of the modern West by the first audiences sends it off to a fine start.

In this offering, which is the screen version of Tom Gill's recent novel of present-day border life, "The Gay Bandit of the Border," Alfred Werker, the director, seems to have forgotten all the hindering rules of theater and the stage for the more flexible and direct method of telling the story with the camera. Thus we have the pure flow of action that characterized the novel, the twang and zest of which recreated so vividly the colorful West of today.

plan might be applied, not only to cure present conditions but to guard against their return.

He has hinted at the trend of his thoughts once or twice in public utterances, but there is no evidence that a rounded-out program has yet taken shape in his mind.

When he bids for another four years of power, he will come before the country in a slightly different character.

He will be looking to March 4, 1937, not merely to the end of the present administration. Without doubt he will discuss national problems in the light, particularly the national problem of a new economic deal.

Filling The Witches.

The question where the campaign money is coming from is more acute than party leaders like to admit. Loan funds never conduce to fat political treasuries, especially for the party in power.

One business man of national reputation who raised $200,000 for the republican party four years ago and whose home town has been particularly hard hit by the depression, has served notice he does not know where to turn for a single dollar now.

Of course it is not that hopeless everywhere, and the general expectation is that republican manna will arrive, in moderate amount, if the petitioning is sufficiently earnest.

Life's Just a Mere of Contact

We arise in the morning, contact a cake of soap briefly, a shaving brush more extensively. We contact a pair of eggs, a street-car conductor, and finally the office. There is an unpleasant contact with a bill collector. He says he must contact some money. Later, perhaps, we contact a customer or two. When the shades of night have contacted the earth, we contact dinner, and pass the evening contacting poor bridge hands. And so to bed.
